

Case Study

Total Extraction Solutions Ltd were approached to provide a full turnkey operation for a major university in the U.K. The contract had a total value of £320,000 and involved a number of differing processes.

Processes involved soldering, brazing, welding, polishing, wood working and paint spraying for which a number of different solutions were required to ensure that students and staff were able to operate effectively under safe conditions.

The client was overwhelmed with the standard of work that was completed and its effectiveness that a number of other contracts for Solder Fume Extraction and Fume Cupboards have been awarded to our company.
